MAYOR CANFIELD FAVORS CITY COMMISSION PLAN

In Address Before Conference of Mayors and City Officials Held in Auburn Kingston's Mayor Tells Why He Favors Commission Plan of City Government.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Auburn, June 4.—The fifth annual conference of mayors and other officials of the cities of this state convened Wednesday at Auburn and nearly every city in the state was represented. Mayor Fiske of Mt. Vernon presided. After the invocation and the address of welcome by Mayor Brister of Auburn, Mayor Irving of Binghamton delivered the president's address. H. M. Waite, city manager of Dayton, Ohio, then delivered an address, taking for his topic: "The Commission Manager Plan—Its Advantages." His address was discussed by Mayor Palmer Canfield of Kingston and Richard S. Childs of New York City. Addresses were then made by Robert S. Binkerd, secretary of the City Club, New York City, and William T. Arndt of New York City upon the question of municipal home rule. Governor Glynn, who was to address the conference upon the question of the state and the municipality, was unable to come until Thursday. At the evening session addresses were made by J. L. Beaver, chief of police of Atlanta, Georgia; Chief Quigley of Rochester; Joseph Hammett, chief of New York city fire prevention bureau, (with motion pictures); Chief Yates of Schenectady and others. After the evening session the Auburn fire department gave an illuminated pomper exhibition on the drill grounds.

Mayor Canfield's address was as follows: No matter how antagonistic or prejudiced one may be to or toward the commission manager form of municipal government he must recognize its success in Dayton. The great transformation for the better that has taken place there must appeal strongly to everyone who is interested in municipal government and its problems. If one examine and analyze this form of government with the municipal disapproval, the flaws and defects that we will find will be small and insignificant in comparison with those that we can discover without any great effort in the ordinary city charter of this state.

There are many people who look upon it as a radical, sweeping change. They believe that it is a leap in the dark. They fail to realize that a city is a large corporation, that they do not seem to appreciate the fact that nearly all large successful corporations are conducting their own business under practically the same plan. Every corporation has a board of directors or trustees. Under the board of a large corporation there is a general superintendent or manager who is often the real executive of the corporation. Under the superintendent there are assistant superintendents, who are usually hired by the superintendent. If they are hired by the superintendent, the business of large private corporations is not the twin of the commission-manager method, then my municipal eyes must be crossed-eyed or near-sighted.

The success or failure of a municipal corporation must necessarily depend to a great extent upon the manner in which it conducts its business operations, just as it does with a private corporation. The commission-manager plan gives a municipal corporation the advantage and benefit of being governed like a private corporation. No matter whether we believe in the commission-manager form of municipal government or not, we must all believe in a simplified plan. The charter of a city has a great deal to do with success and efficiency of municipal administration.

James Bryce says in regard to our cities, "there is no denying that the government of cities is the one conspicuous failure in the United States. The faults of the state government are insignificant compared with the extravagance, corruption and mismanagement which has marked the administration of most of our cities." That is harsh criticism, but we must resort to city planning or other remedy to eradicate these conditions. We must necessarily have a simplified form of government to receive the full benefit of complete city planning. We know that city planning is one of the oldest sciences in some countries but one of the youngest in our country. With such a system in operation in a city, it is considered in its entirety and each part is studied and planned in connection with each other part. In reference to the whole city. The ordinary wheel furnishes us with a good illustration as to what such a plan is to a city. When we create an image of a wheel in our mind we first notice the hub and then the spokes and the rim. As the hub revolves the spokes and the rim revolve; and, in fact, the whole wheel, also revolves. Each strengthens the other parts, and each part depends absolutely upon the other parts. Remove one part and you eliminate the wheel. Each part is built in reference to each other part. It is simple and no part of it is useless. With the commission-manager form of government we must admit that the manager is a real center or hub of power, and that there is also the complete circle or rim of voters; and that there are also the commissioners who are the connecting ties between the people and the manager. Just as the spokes of a wheel unite the rim with the hub. There is always strength in simplicity. And where anything is simple any weakness in it is always easily and readily discernible. We all realize that the chain is no stronger than its weakest link. The average city has many governmental links that are never used or seldom used, and they become rusty and the whole municipal chain is thereby weakened. Lessen the links in the chain and you can watch and guard them better and there is less likelihood of any part of the chain becoming rusty or unusable. If the commission-manager form of municipal government is the most effective method of eliminating all surplusage and duplications, and of utilizing and centralizing all available agencies and forces conducive to efficiency, and if it produces the greatest ratio of beneficial results to the money and energy expended in producing it, then it is the best form of municipal government.

Archdeaconry of Orange.

The sixth regular meeting of the Archdeaconry of Orange was held in St. John's Church, Ellenville, the Rev. H. Hobson, rector, on Tuesday, June 2. Archdeacon Hulise was the celebrant at the service of the Holy Communion, the Rev. W. J. Clarke Agnew read the gospel and the Rev. H. Hobson the epistle. After the services at 12:20 o'clock, the bishop of New York having arrived, called the meeting to order. After roll call, there being a quorum of the clergy and laity present, the bishop declared the meeting open for the transaction of business. The archdeacon then read his report, a motion was made and carried that a committee be appointed to have the report printed in The Churchman. This committee consisted of the bishop of New York and the secretary. The bishop appointed the archdeacon and the secretary and Mr. Murray, a committee to draw up and convey to the widow, a suitable resolution, concerning the late George S. Clarke of Milton. A copy of which, to be placed upon the minutes. The secretary was directed by the archdeaconry to convey by letter to the Rev. John Huske, the greeting of the archdeaconry with the prayer for his speedy recovery.

The archdeaconry sent its fraternal greetings to the Methodist Assembly then in session in Ellenville. A vote of thanks was given to the rector of St. John's Church and the ladies thereof, for their generous hospitality.

TAMPICO BLOCKADE MAY FORCE A FIGHT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 4.—Reports of the threatened blockade by the Federals of the port of Tampico caused grave concern among officials here today. It was stated that should the two Federal gunboats proceed to the mouth of the Panuco river, to prevent the landing of the consignments of arms and ammunition from American ports for the use of the Constitutionalists they will precipitate events that will make mediation impossible.

Tampico has been declared an open port by the United States and the navy department has instructed Admiral Badger to keep it open even should he have to resort to force to repel the Federal gunboats. These orders were sent Admiral Badger several weeks ago by Acting Secretary Roosevelt and have not been revoked. The navy department early today sent Admiral Badger a long message. The contents were guarded carefully, but it was rumored that the message reiterated the former orders.

"We cannot help what the consequences are," is the statement credited to Huerta's War Minister Blanquet in connection with the report if the issuance of the orders of the two Federal gunboats is taken at its face value by Washington officials who believe that the Huertistas will go to any extremes to prevent Gen. Carranza from receiving munitions of war to enable him to continue his march on the Mexican capital.

Diplomats here see in this situation the probable end of the peace parleys, for it is argued, should the two Federal gunboats attempt to close the port of Tampico, it will be to Admiral Badger to use the guns of his fleet to keep it open, or the United States must back down from its declaration. The firing on the gunboats by the Americans, would be an open violation of the armistice which paved the way for mediation and will cause the inevitable break which has been threatening the proceedings at Niagara Falls for several days, according to the official view here.

It was learned at the navy department that the two Federal gunboats left Puerto Mexico Tuesday after taking on large quantities of ammunition and that the Huertistas had not yet been sighted here. It is since has been reported, however, that they headed for Tampico and now are only a few hours from that port.

The developments of the next 24 hours are awaited by officials here with keen interest and anxiety is felt on all sides. Whether the mediation program is to continue or not will be decided by the events of tonight and tomorrow was the general prediction.

Body of Becker Recovered.

The body of John E. Becker, formerly of this city, who was drowned at Amsterdam on March 28, was recovered about five miles from that place on Tuesday. The body was found floating in the Mohawk river by a party of campers and the coroner was notified. Becker and a man named Ingersoll, both employees of the New York Telephone Company, were engaged in stringing a cable across the Mohawk river near Amsterdam when a bridge at that place had been carried away by the spring freshets. Their boat capsized in the freshet and the two were drowned. A third man in the boat was rescued but the other two sunk and never reappeared. Identification of Becker's body was made by means of his company badge and a diamond ring which he wore in spite of the fact that the body was badly decomposed. He is survived by his wife his mother, and two brothers of this city, Paul and Louis Becker.

Runaway at Big Indian.

A serious runaway occurred Tuesday evening between Olivera and Big Indian. A team belonging to Samuel Nager collided with a peddling wagon and then becoming unmanageable ran away. Near the Jocelyn dugway above the Cruickshank house the team went over a high bank and were caught high up and hung themselves in the branches of the trees. Before help could be secured one of the horses chok'd to death and the other one had to be let down with ropes to prevent its death. The town board were at Olivera Wednesday night to investigate the matter as Mr. Nager made a claim at once against the town. It is not probable that the town is liable as the team was unmanageable and without a driver when they went over the bank—Pine Hill Optic.

Convicts Subdue a Fire.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Joliet, Ill., June 4.—Warden Allen today praised the thousands of convicts who assisted city firemen in subduing a fire which destroyed a rat shop No. 1 in the state penitentiary. Although all prisoners not under solitary confinement assisted in the fight, none attempted to escape. The loss was $10,000. The cause was undetermined.

Lectured and Discharged.

Patrick Shannon was arrested down town on Wednesday night by Policeman O'Neil for public intoxication. He was arraigned this morning before Recorder Grogan, but as he was very penitent he was discharged with a little lecture from the court.

SAUGERTIES TISSUE MILL BURNED; LOSS $200,000

Insured for $135,000 and Will Be Rebuilt—Narrow Escapes of Employees From Fire That Enveloped the Whole Building in a Few Minutes After It Was Discovered.

The mill of the Tissue Company at Saugerties was burned to the ground by a fire which broke out Wednesday afternoon about 3 o'clock and burned fiercely for two hours before it was gotten under control. Adjoining buildings of the Diamond Paper Company, the Saugerties Manufacturing Company and houses and barns were threatened at one time but the volunteer firemen worked like demons to save these.

This was one of the worst fires that ever visited Saugerties and the loss is fully $200,000. The Tissue Company's plant is owned principally by Martin Cantine and has been in operation for only the past two years. It was located on Cantine's Island on the site of the old Ulster mill. At the time of the fire 125 hands were employed, of which 55 were girls. The origin of the fire is not known but it started in the loft where the finished product is kept.

As soon as the flames were seen by employees there was a general exodus from the building and the rush was so great that at one time it was feared some of the younger folks would be trampled under feet. In a minute it seemed that the entire mill was ablaze and an alarm hose company and Washington hook and ladder company. The pressure of water at the tissue mill was very poor and on this account the flames made quick headway before the volunteer firemen arrived.

While the employees were helpless to do anything to prevent the spread of the flames it began to look as though the Diamond paper mill would also catch fire. In a fifty it seemed that the Saugerties fire ladders had six streams on the burning building and four other streams were furnished by the pumping engine of the Diamond mill. The persistent rain has been a great help in saving the latter plant. The Saugerties Manufacturing Company's plant and the residences of Dennis O'Hara and George Diel on Cantine's Island. Both of these caught fire at one time but were quickly extinguished. A barn of Hugh McEnroe on East Bridge street, was saved by a bucket brigade.

Two employees of the mill and three firemen were burned or injured during the progress of the fire. They are: Albert Eckert, employee, James Myer, employee. Both burned about the face and arms.

Fireman William Tracy Jr., Fireman Frank Simmons, Fireman Perry Underhill.

All members of Washington hook and ladder company. Burned about arms and legs. Underhill was hit by a falling timber and had his knee dislocated. Dr. Emerick attended him.

In the rush to leave the burning mill two employees came near losing their lives. They were Benjamin Crump, Jr., and James Myers. The former is millwright and came to a window from which the smoke was pouring. Bystanders saw him and put a plank up the window. Crump stepped on this and leaned to a tree five feet away. Catching hold of a limb he was able to make his way to the ground. Myers was reached by means of a ladder raised from the ground.

The Tissue Company manufactures paper napkins, crepe paper, etc. Martin Cantine was president of the company. In all probability the mill will be rebuilt. The mill covered 24,000 square feet of floor space. Some of the machines were very costly running from $2,000 to $4,000 each. The print blocks for printing crepe paper cost as high as $15,000. All of these are total loss. Wednesday was pay day at the mill and some of the employees lost their pay envelopes in the rush to get out besides their coats and hats. Theodore Trombly lost a gold watch and his salary. Miss Helen Edwards also lost her week's salary.

On all hands was heard highest praise for the work of Chief Schneider, Assistant Chief Carnright and the fire department. The Saugerties steamer also did good service.

The insurance on the property amounts to $135,000, which will cover about two-thirds of the loss. James

EUROPEAN POLICEMEN.

Clever in London, "Sloppy" in Paris and Polite in Berlin.

In humor, in urbanity, as in perfect control of his district, the London policeman is the nearest approach to perfection, writes Percival Pollard, who in "Vagabond Journeys" has a word to say of the various policemen of the world. He adds that in looks only our American policemen equal those of London.

To the stranger the policeman seems the politest of all Londoners. Chiefly, however, it is in his control of traffic, a wheel and a foot, that he is unrivaled. When you consider the narrowness of the streets you constantly marvel at the easy skill with which he solves his problem.

The Paris policeman never looks anything but "sloppy," and his notion of controlling traffic at crowded street crossings is enough to make the observer shout with laughter. No one minds him, and his attempts to regulate the speed of the Parisian cabby only result in a slanging match. Observation of Parisian street traffic is all that is really necessary to impress you with the belief that in case of need the Paris policeman would always, with much noise and melodrama, arrest the wrong person.

The police of Berlin are vastly better than those of Paris. They do not look as well, according to our notions, as the English "constables," but they are fairly smart. The men are polite, control traffic inexorably and see to it that Berlin is one of the cleanest and most orderly of cities. But as reasoning individuals the Berlin policemen are hardly to be counted at all. When anything happens to you more serious than crossing a congested street or losing your way you are fairly certain of running hard against a city ordinance, mechanically enforced by the man on the beat.

No argument or persuasion prevails. There is the regulation, and here the instrument to enforce it. The human element is entirely absent. Both Italy and France are as to their police more human.

THE GOLD TEST.

Its Use in Diagnosing Diseases of the Brain and Nerves.

Like the weird remedies and tests of medicine in middle ages are some of the latest scientific tests devised to detect and classify forms of insanity and brain affections. Salts of gold in solution, drops of spinal fluid, bits of the tissue from the covering of a normal person's brain and various other similar materials are the means employed.

The gold test, for instance, is used to prove definitely the existence of paresis, meningitis and several other forms of nervous diseases, though in practice it is used mostly as corroborative proof rather than the only proof. Solutions of salt of gold of carefully graduated strength are put into test tubes, with the weakest solution at one end of the row, grading up to the strongest at the other end.

Fluid from the spinal column of the person who is being examined is then dropped into the tubes. The presence of certain kinds of brain or nervous trouble is then indicated by the colors produced in some of the tubes. The particular color produced and the strength of the solution that shows the color strongest give the clue to the kind of disease.

Another peculiar test for certain other kinds of brain trouble is to take a drop of blood from the person examined and place in it a prepared solution from a tiny particle of brain covering of a normal person. Epilepsy causes an easily detected reaction on the combined solution, while other brain disturbances are detected by a similar process, using other materials in the same way.—Saturday Evening Post.

Being Lucid.

If you wish to achieve a reputation for originality and distinction try being lucid. There is nothing quite like it: "Permit me to thank you for your lucid exposition of"—it matters not what the subject.

What is it to be lucid? It is to write something which the man who compliments you because you have been lucid about it agrees with. No one who disagrees with you ever called you lucid. No woman ever referred to her husband as a lucid husband. No man ever called his wife a lucid wife.—Life.

Something Explained.

IN THE HOG LOT.

Get the sows and little pigs out on the ground as soon as possible.

To thrive best the young pigs must have dry nests, and the bedding should be changed frequently.

The shelter should be so constructed that when the sow and little pigs are in them they will be protected from wind and wet.

When pigs get too fat from lack of exercise and begin to pant and lie around get them out on the ground, where they must exercise, or they will die of the thumps.

Full and rapid growth is the only profitable growth. Running water and plenty of pasture will save many pounds of feed in the growing of a hog.

Take pains not to have any traps about the hog yards where the hogs may get caught and hurt in any way.

BUYING A STALLION.

Points That Indicate High Quality in the Draft Sire.

L. R. Wiley of Emporia, Kan., who presented a paper at the meeting of the Improved Stock Breeders' association, had the following good advice to give to the prospective stallion buyer:

What the prospective stallion buyer should look for when selecting his horse is quality and quantity of bone. By this we mean a good, heavy, clean flat bone, good feet—in fact, it is of prime importance that we get good feet and know how to keep them.

Coming on up to the knee and hock, be sure that the bone just below the joints is large in proportion to the other bone. A clean cut prominent knee is essential, as is also a clean cut bony hock that is not inclined to fill.

Further, we should find short, thick gaskins and large stiles that come out

The introduction of Percherons into this country began at quite an early date, but was a long time in gaining much impetus, partly because, like many other new breeds of animals, their value was slow to be realized. Percherons did not gain a really secure foothold in this country until the importation of the famous horse Louis Napoleon in 1853. With the birth and development of this breed, its value as a sire was realized, and long before his death he had become a very noted animal. The fact that there are now in this country 65,000 Percheron horses will give some idea of the popularity which the breed has attained.

even with broad, square hips. In front we should find a good forearm, long, sloping shoulders, a good neck of proportionate length with a well developed crest and clean cut throat.

The head should be large and bony, the eye clear and prominent, ears of medium length and, contrary to some contentions, the face should not be dishd, as there are plenty of good ones without this unsightly conformation.

A short back well coupled above well sprung ribs and a long underline running low at the flank make an almost ideal body. The average stallion possessing a well developed crest will appear low in the back when the fact is he is not. Nevertheless we should guard against the low back.

Treatment For Scratches.

For aggravated cases of scratches and for grease in horses do not wash, as such conditions are aggravated by washing, says the Farm Journal. Poultice the part with hot flaxseed meal for three days. If there is a bad odor mix two or three tablespoonfuls of powdered wood charcoal and a couple of teaspoonfuls of coal tar disinfectant in each poultice. After discontinuing the poultices apply three times a day an ointment composed of one dram each of spirits of camphor and compound tincture of benzoin and two drams of sulphur mixed in one ounce of lanoline or fresh lard. If a month of this treatment does not avail cleanse the parts and blister with cerate of cantharides, and go on using the ointment as before after the blister has been washed off in two days.

Hogs For Pasture.

There is no breed of swine especially adapted for forage purposes. Any of the recognized fat breeds will thrive in pastured areas, provided they are given in addition sufficient grain to enable rapid and continuous growth. Representatives of the bacon breeds are not so well adapted for pasturing, as they are inclined to waste and utilize energy roaming about the field.

Feed Makes Milk.

The cow that makes the best yield is the cow that eats the most feed. Among milk cows of dairy breeding it is exceptional when a large feeder proves unprofitable. It is the light feeder among such class of cattle that is disposed of first. Since milk can be had only from feed, the more feed the cow can convert into milk at a profit the more profitable she is to her owner.

EUROPEAN POLICEMEN.

Clever in London, "Sloppy" in Paris and Polite in Berlin.

In humor, in urbanity, as in perfect control of his district, the London policeman is the nearest approach to perfection, writes Percival Pollard, who in "Vagabond Journeys" has a word to say of the various policemen of the world. He adds that in looks only our American policemen equal those of London.

To the stranger the policeman seems the polttest of all Londoners. Chiefly, however, it is in his control of traffic, a wheel and a foot, that he is unrivaled. When you consider the narrowness of the streets you constantly marvel at the easy skill with which he solves his problem.

The Paris policeman never looks anything but "sloppy," and his notion of controlling traffic at crowded street crossings is enough to make the observer shout with laughter. No one minds him, and his attempts to regulate the speed of the Parisian cabbies only result in a slanging match. Observation of Parisian street traffic is all that is really necessary to impress you with the belief that in case of need the Paris policeman would always, with much noise and melodrama, arrest the wrong person.

The police of Berlin are vastly better than those of Paris. They do not look as well, according to our notions, as the English "constables," but they are fairly smart. The men are polite, control traffic inexorably and see to it that Berlin is one of the cleanest and most orderly of cities. But as reasoning individuals the Berlin policemen are hardly to be counted at all. When anything happens to you more serious than crossing a congested street or losing your way you are fairly certain of running hard against a city ordinance, mechanically enforced by the man on the beat.

No argument or persuasion prevails. There is the regulation, and here the instrument to enforce it. The human element is entirely absent. Both Italy and France are as to their police more human.

THE FARM LABORER.

Despite the fact that farm hands are drawing higher wages today than ever before in the history of farming the farmers throughout the county are complaining that it is impossible to secure enough help to work the farms, and yet the visible supply of idle men and tramps does not seem to be diminished to any perceptible extent. For this reason the farmer has not been able to take as much time off from his farm work as usual, due to the backward season this year and the lack of available help. The fact that the farmers were busy was shown plainly on circus day when the number of real farmers who were able to spare the time to visit the circus was small. Of course the "agriculturists" had time enough to spare to take the big show in.

The average wage that a farm hand is paid in the county today is $1.50 a day, but the farm hand must board himself. Probably the highest paid help in the county is at Esopus and West Park, where the farm hands on the Payne estate are paid $1.75 per day. But the Payne estate is not a business proposition such as a real farmer has to deal with.

All farmers, however, do not pay their help by the day, many paying by the month. A good farm hand in the county today receives from $26 to $30 a month and board. This is a high wage considering the fact that only a few years ago a farm hand counted himself fortunate if he received from $15 to $20 a month and board for his labors. Many farmers in the county can easily remember when it was possible to secure a good man for fifty to seventy-five cents a day, but those days are past and are not likely to return.

Beside high wages the farm hand today works less hours than his predecessor. Ten hours a day now constitute the working day of the farm hand in the county. He goes to work at 7 o'clock in the morning and works until 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon and has half an hour off for dinner. In the old days a farm hand worked from "sunup to sundown" and sometimes even then his work was not finished for the day.

One of the large farmers in the county advances as a reason for not being able to secure enough good help the fact that the growing generation do not care to work on farms and prefer to secure work with contracting firms on large contracts, or get work in the city, considering that farm life is too dull and quiet for them.

An up-to-date farmer today finds that it costs more to run his farm than it did in the old days due to modern methods of farming but his output is larger. Taking into consideration the amount of money the farmer must invest in modern farming machinery to work his farm and the higher wages the must pay his help, the farmer today finds that his overhead charges are larger than ever before. To meet this higher overhead, expense the farmer has to raise more crops and secure better prices than in the old days, and the successful farmer is doing that and is making money as it is no uncommon sight in Ulster county to see farmers owning their own automobiles who have not found it necessary to mortgage their farms to do so either.

The problem of the farm hand is one of the most important that the farmer of today has to contend with, and affects everybody even more directly than do the other so-called labor problems over which sociologists and politicians are making a great amount of fuss. As a direct and large element in the cost of living it is worthy of the attention of the most able thinkers of the world.

Why not name the city's new high school Kingston Academy? That is precisely what it will be and there is no good reason against applying its proper name to it. This is the city of Kingston and it is the city of Kingston as a whole that should be boomed in every way possible. One way in which we have shown that old jealousies and silly prejudices are being forgotten is in locating the new school in the center of the city, where it should be, and without anyone advancing any arguments on the claims of uptown or downtown, Higginsville, Ponchockie, Wilbur, Wiltwyck or the Promised Land, to special consideration or favor as against the interest and convenience of the whole city. The two villages two miles apart have grown together into one city and the name of that city is Kingston. Let us celebrate the burial of the last prejudice by naming the new school Kingston Academy.

A SURGEON'S ROYAL GIFT.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

Just eight weeks ago a five-year-old lad, whose home is near Oxford, N. C., went to a hospital in Washington. He was a joyous little fellow, bubbling over with high spirits, and his cheeks bore the glad hue of royal health.

But his poor little "clubbed" feet were pathetically deformed, so badly turned under that he could scarcely manage to hobble about—it was a labored shuffle, nothing more.

For several days he waited, and then, one morning the test of surgery began. Swiftly and surely the work went on, first on one foot, then on the other. Ligaments were cut, tendons separated, little bones readjusted, and the wee feet of the unconscious child were all but amputated. Then both members were readjusted, and, after the necessary antiseptic treatment, were wrapped in great plaster of paris casts reaching up to the knee.

The limp little form was put to bed, to await the outcome, and it was not long before he became his glad self again, so far as spirits were concerned, and each day the process of healing brought him a step nearer the end. Five weeks after the operation was performed, the impatient youngster was released from the plaster cast, and the miracle was revealed; for the poor, useless stubs were gone and two normal little feet were there, with scarcely a trace left to tell of the old deformity, except the scars made by the surgeon's knife.

Quite likely miracles of that wonderful sort have been wrought before, although it is counted one of the greatest triumphs that modern surgery ever has won in Washington. But the thing that most matters is that skill was once more victorious over deformity, and that another little scrap of humanity was sent on his way rejoicing, with straight, sturdy feet to carry him along.

All that he realizes now is that he can run, jump and play with the rest of the boys; and perhaps, of the two, the surgeon is gladder, and happier, to be the proud instrument in such a victory.

But some day the boy will know that he owes much to surgery's steady advance.

Physicians, surgeons, have their hours of defeat, times when their long, desperate chances are taken in vain; and sometimes the best of their labors end in nothing but failure. But when their triumphs really come, in the way of conquest over pain or of victory over disease or physical deformities, their saving achievements ring to the very heavens.

And if one were disposed to envy another's fine accomplishments and usefulness, one would single out a man who had lightened the physical ills of suffering humanity.

Strange, is it not, that the world has so persistently honored the men who have won great victories on the field of battle and that their names are written large in the annals of history with monuments scattered all over to tell their achievements to future generations, while it has but briefly applauded the men whose discoveries today are blessing mankind?

Who often hears of Thomas G. Morton, the discoverer of ether, that beneficent gift to humanity, which day and night, is conquering unbearable pain all over the world?

Or of Sir Joseph Lister, whose patient, plodding work in his Edinburgh laboratory resulted in bestowing upon the world the royal gift of antiseptics, which has brought health and life in the wake of dangerous operations? Because of its beneficent effects, many and many a fear-some operation is ventured now that would not have been dared in the past, and it goes on saving life where death was dealt before. A movement was started awhile ago to erect a monument to this great benefactor whose healing gift has blessed thousands of households, but whether the plan ever matured or not, I do not know.

Certain it is that whether monuments and lasting honors are bestowed or withheld among the proudest victories of all that are won, or ever have been won, are those that bring rest and peace to over-racked bodies, that transform twisted little members into firm little legs and that bestow physical straightness to men and women long tortured by abnormal somethings that kept them out of useful running, and perhaps chained to beds of suffering.

Yes, it is to the saviors of life, rather than the destroyers, that our finest laurels should go, for humanity often has grievous burdens of suffering to bear, and the kindly hand that lessens it and puts the sufferer back into paths of comfort and cheerfulness mightily enriches the world.

The late Warner Van Norden, the millionaire descendant of Manhattan patooties, had a horror of dissipation, and at a St. Nicholas Society dinner he once said:

"The dissipated man has a reputation that he can no more get rid of than he can get rid of his lungs and liver."

"The wife of a bibulous weaver waited, one pay night for her husband till 10 o'clock and then went to the police station to see if he was there."

The Honest Doctor.

A young doctor may stumble into the good graces of a patient by a fluke, as in the story fathered, like so many stories, upon Abernethy. After a convivial gathering Abernethy was summoned to the aid of a well-to-do lady. When he pulled out his watch and put his fingers on the patient's wrist he could not count the pulse. "Drunk again," he muttered. The next morning he was requested to make an early call to see the lady, who received him most effusively. "Doctor," she said, "you are the first honest doctor I have had. I was drunk." And ever after she was one of Abernethy's staunchest adherents and best patients.

The Two Horns.

"The British laboring man adheres more and more to the labor party. He is finding out more and more that he has little but promises to expect from either the Conservatives or the Liberals."

"A Liberal millionaire was addressing, one night, a political meeting of workmen."

"Vote for the Liberal candidate, our dear Lord Dacre!" he cried. "Conservatism! Indeed. What have you workmen got to conserve? Why, nothing—absolutely nothing!" "Right you are, old man!" roared a workman from the back of the hall. "And we ain't got anything to be liberal with, either."—New York Herald.

Bad Acting.

Prof. Brander Matthews, the student of the drama, was talking in New York about a bad play.

"The actors, too, were bad," he said. "They were, in fact, so very bad that they reminded me of a certain ball masque."

"Very poor," was the reply. "You don't say so! And how was Mary Lannigan as the Goddess of Liberty?"

"Rotten." "Rotten? Didn't she act the part well?"

A SURGEON'S ROYAL GIFT.

Man's Highest Duty.

Prophet words are profitable. Clear, strong, brave and unequivocal utterance of the highest truth one knows is a clear duty owed to God and the world. ### THE MAGNET A PUZZLE.

Science Can Make One, but Can't Explain the Change in the Metal.

Getting the magnetism into the steel so that it will stay there permanently is a long and intricate process, as Professor Silvanus Phillips Thompson describes it in the Journal of the Institution of Electrical Engineers.

First of all you have to pick your steel. It must have from 5 to 8 per cent of tungsten and from 0.4 to 0.6 of carbon. It must have not more than 2.5 per cent of chromium, but it must not have any manganese, titanium, copper, sulphur or phosphorus. It is forged with as little working of the material as possible and at as low a temperature as convenient. After forging it should be heated to 900 degrees C., lowered to 750 degrees C., there maintained for a time and then cooled off. This "normalizes" it.

To harden it it is raised to 950 degrees C. for not more than five minutes, then lowered to about 700 degrees C. and quenched at this temperature in brine or at a temperature under 20 degrees C.

Then it is "matured" by boiling or steaming it for ten or twelve hours or by heating it to 60 degrees C. for twenty hours. It is alternately heated and allowed to cool off several times.

Now the steel is ready to be magnetized. If it is a bar a magnetizing coil is used; if a horseshoe, then an electromagnet is employed. It is magnetized to the highest degree possible, and there is some advantage in reversing its magnetism a few times. The result depends upon the maximum magnetizing force and not on the duration of the application. The current is not shut off suddenly, but is gradually diminished to zero. While under the influence of the current the magnet is struck with a brass hammer.

Its stability is insured by subjecting it to alternate cycles of demagnetizing and remagnetizing about the point of magnetization at which it is to remain.

What change has now taken place in the steel neither Professor Thompson nor Edison nor Tesla nor any other man can explain. The steel looks the same as it did originally; it feels the same; its weight is the same; its ring is the same; it has neither odor nor flavor. The microscope reveals no change in its structure. Chemistry fails to detect that an element has been added to or subtracted from it. And yet it will draw another piece of iron to itself and hold it there.

Nerve of a Dying Aviator.

The power of the will to control a badly injured body was never better illustrated than in the case of Dr. Constantin, a volunteer aviator in the service of the Bulgarian army, who was fatally wounded by a Turkish bullet while sailing his aeroplane over the trenches at Tebatulja. Notwithstanding the shock, the pain and the rapid hemorrhage, Dr. Constantin kept his nerve and was able to turn his aeroplane around, guide it back to the Bulgarian lines and volplane safely down among his friends. He died as the aeroplane reached the ground.—New York World.

Easy Fitting.

The king of England, when he wants a new suit of clothes, is not put to the trouble that ordinary mortals suffer. Each of the royal tailors possesses a dummy figure of the king's exact proportions, and when the suits are taken home trying on is unnecessary. If the king particularly likes a special suit, he will wear it at intervals for months, but he never wears the same clothes on two consecutive days. About thirty suits are in ordinary wear, including shooting and riding kits, and the king owns nearly 400 British and foreign uniforms, some of which are perhaps worn once in a dozen years.

Rare Ben's Text Restored.

Mr. Justice Eve's vindication of the healthiness of laughter did not tempt his lordship to a familiar quotation, most usually misquoted. The common form is "Laugh and grow fat," but the correct text is "Laugh and be fat," put by Ben Jonson into the mouth of Pan in "The Penates." The fatness does not strictly follow from the laughter in Jonson's line, but the proverbial misquotation has imported that meaning.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Sad State.

"Why not?"
"Being rich, of course, I can not go into the kitchen as I once did. Yet servants are still careless."

"Well?"

"So I spend many sleepless nights worrying about the drip pan under the refrigerator."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Another Delusion.

"Why is it that a man generally saves more money after he is married than he did before?"

"He doesn't. He merely thinks he does because he is getting along without so many things that he formerly had."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Her First Visit.

Thrifty Chinese Farmers.

While our farmers throw broadcast handfuls of grain on the harrowed earth, offering rich pasturage to pillaging birds and rodents, the Chinaman, after furrowing the earth with his wooden plowshare, without turning it, crumbles each lump in his hands till it is like fine powder. This done, at planting time he walks slowly down each furrow, carrying a grain drill, which is a marvel of ingenious simplicity.

MEDIATORS WAIT FOR CARRANZA

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mediation Headquarters, Niagara Falls, Ont., June 4.—Mediation in Mexico waited on the pleasure of Gen. Carranza today. That the success of the conference here depends upon the will of the Constitutionalists as expressed through Carranza, was admitted by the mediators, the Huerta delegates and the American representatives.

All agree that mediation was a delicate constructive operation in which the least flaw as to understanding and adherence to the plan of settlement would prove fatal. While they do not concede that Gen. Carranza is a necessary factor in reaching an agreement here, they do point out that his refusal to grant armistice and to submit to the advice of the conference will leave the Huerta government unable to carry out its pledges for pacification.

There is no disposition here to deny that the failure to get Carranza's consent to every item in the program of settlement will mean either that the U. S. will be obliged to conquer Mexico in a conflict with the Constitutionalists or that Huerta or Carranza must fight out their battle to the death. In that case the success of the Constitutional chief will remove the cause for mediation, and the conference will be dissolved.

The note sent by the mediators to Gen. Carranza and to which they are now awaiting an answer carried intimation of this feeling. The state department is busy with the proposals to Carranza that he grant at least a brief armistice. President Wilson is anxious that the negotiations go forward indefinitely rather than that any unnecessary bloodshed shall occur.

The Constitutionalists, it is understood, can practically dictate their own terms for the settlement to be reached, if they will only come in.

It has become known that at no time have the American or Mexican delegates discussed with the mediators the future of foreign investments in the republic. Interference in purely internal problems has reached only a proposal to form a new provisional government and to impose conditions which would bring about a distribution of land to the peasants.

Nothing has been said concerning the railroads, cattle ranches, mining or manufacturing industries, 85 per cent of which along with 85 per cent of the property in the country, is owned by foreigners. It is assumed that the Constitutionalists will leave these undisturbed. With this the mediators and the Americans are satisfied.

VILLA RETIRED FROM ARMY COMMAND

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Juarez, Mex., June 4.—Reports of bickering between Gen. Carranza and Gen. Villa received apparent confirmation today in dispatches from Durango giving details of a military reorganization of the Constitutionalists. These state that Carranza has effected an arrangement by which Gen. Panfilo Natorra will command the army in the central zone, making him Villa's superior in the campaign that has for its aim the capture of Mexico City.

Friends of Villa say he will acquiesce in the appointment of Natorra though they are manifestly bitter toward Carranza for yielding to what they call a "cabal of jealousy." It is well understood here that many Constitutionalists leaders have been jealous of Villa's prominence and he had also been placed on Carranza's "black book" because of his open opposition to the truculent attitude taken by the Constitutionalists' provisional president toward the United States.

Villa's "illness" in Chihuahua, which was announced to be the cause of his failing to come here, is believed to be due to his desire not to get too far from the base of operations of the rebels. His coming to the border might give his enemies an opportunity to eliminate him altogether. If where he can make a quick journey to Torreón to appeal to his army his foes will not dare to try to force him out. Practically the entire fighting machine of the rebels is loyal to Villa and would mutiny in his support if he required the soldiers to do so.

SUCCESSFUL LAWN PARTY.

Pages of the Holy Grail Prove Themselves a Live Body.

A very successful lawn festival was held Wednesday evening by the Pages of the Holy Grail of the Trinity M. E. Church on the beautiful, spacious lawn of Mrs. Albert Terry, corner of Broadway and Orchard street.

The numerous Japanese lanterns strung between the large pine trees throwing their soft mellow glow down upon the groups of little tables spread here and there over the lawn made a very pretty picture.

The little fellows were very prompt and courteous in serving their patrons with ice cream and cake. The Pages of the Holy Grail is composed of the young men of the church and was originated and organized by Lester Finley, who will be remembered as the progressive Sir Knight Commander of the Knights of the Holy Grail, and much credit and praise is due to him for his untiring efforts in organizing a junior order to the esquires and knights so that when the pages become of the required age they will naturally swell the ranks of the esquires and knights, learning the fundamental principles of knighthood in the ranks of the pages. The interest and enthusiasm with which the members have grasped the opportunity indicate that the esquires and knights will have to look to their laurels. The festival proved to be a social and financial success. The present officers of the pages are Morris Husted, page commander; Edwin Horton, page of the scroll; Albert Cooper, page of the purse; and Ross Vogt, prelate.

SUCCESSFUL LAWN PARTY.

Pages of the Holy Grail Prove Themselves a Live Body.

A very successful lawn festival was held Wednesday evening by the pages of the Holy Grail of the Trinity M. E. Church on the beautiful, spacious lawn of Mrs. Albert Terry, corner of Broadway and Orchard street.

The numerous Japanese lanterns strung between the large pine trees throwing their soft mellow glow down upon the groups of little tables spread here and there over the lawn made a very pretty picture. The little fellows were very prompt and courteous in serving their patrons with ice cream and cake. The Pages of the Holy Grail is composed of the young men of the church and was originated and organized by Lester Finley, who it will be remembered is the progressive Sir Knight Commander of the Knights of the Holy Grail, and much credit and praise is due to him for his untiring efforts in organizing a junior order to the esquires and knights so that when the pages become of the required age they will naturally swell the ranks of the esquires and knights, learning the fundamental principles of knighthood in the ranks of the pages. The interest and enthusiasm with which the pages have grasped the opportunity indicate that the esquires and knights will have to look to their laurels. The festival proved to be a social and financial success. The present officers of the pages are Morris Husted, page commander; Edwin Horton, page of the scroll; Albert Cooper, page of the purse; and Ross Vogt, prelate.

THE NATIONAL GRANGE

(Conducted by CHARLES M. GARDNER,
Editor of the National Grange, Westfield, Mass.)

CO-OPERATION AN ACTUALITY

Nebraska Grangers Have Apparently Solved This Important and Perplexing Problem.

For years the Grangers everywhere have been seeking to work out some scheme of practical co-operation, to aid the farmer at both the buying and selling end, by putting him into effective business association with his fellow farmers. Several well-planned projects along these lines have ended in failure, but the seeking for something tangible has gone steadily on.

It has remained for the present year to see put into actual operation in Nebraska a Grange undertaking of this sort which bids fair to prove a positive success; and upon the degree of the latter will depend the introduction of the plan into other states, as the patrons throughout the country are watching the Nebraska experiment with very deep interest.

Under the present plan, the subordinate Grange is made the co-operative unit. Each subordinate Grange, desiring to participate in the work of co-operative buying and selling, is required to elect a business agent, whose duty it is to list and tabulate in proper form all orders from members needing supplies, or having articles or products for sale, and to report the same promptly to the agent of the Pomona Grange, or Grange Co-operative association to which his subordinate Grange is attached. The agent of the Pomona or Grange Co-operative association places all orders and transacts all business for the affiliated Granges. He is required to give bond, is under control of a board of directors and may be discharged by them for cause. His compensation is fixed by the directors, on a percentage basis—a sufficient brokerage being allowed on all business passing through his hands to cover loss, shrinkage and cost of handling. The business agent of each co-operating Grange is made a director in the association. The executive committee audits all accounts and presents a balance sheet at each annual meeting. A banking credit is established by means of collateral notes given by members of the association.

These notes are accepted by the banks without question. One Grange, at its third meeting after organization, deposited notes to the amount of $1,900 in a local bank as a nest-egg and is now awaiting the organization of other Granges contiguous to its shipping point, so that a business association may be established.

On the 12th of January of the present year the executive committee of the State Grange, together with one duly elected representative from each Pomona Grange and Grange Co-operative association, met in Kearney and organized the Nebraska State Grange Bureau of Information, of which State Master J. D. Ream of Broken Bow is president; J. A. Harris of Willow Island, vice-president; E. M. Webb of Callaway, secretary-treasurer, and W. A. Ewell of Kearney, business manager. The executive committee of the State Grange acts as executive committee of the bureau.

The purpose of this bureau is to secure and diffuse such information relative to co-operation as the best interests of the order may demand. It is made the duty of the business manager to keep in close touch with the general markets; to secure price quotations, freight rates, etc., on such commodities as are needed or for sale by the members of Grange co-operative associations, or individual Granges; to tabulate and issue confidential printed price lists, and render at all times such information and assistance as will advance the work of co-operation and protect Grange interests.

The expenses of the bureau are provided for by a membership fee of one dollar per annum levied upon subordinate Granges affiliated with co-operative associations, or desiring to obtain the benefits of the bureau. This membership fee may be augmented by an assessment of not to exceed three dollars per annum, levied at the discretion of the executive committee.

All officers of the bureau are subject to recall. The annual election occurs on the Monday in December preceding the annual meeting of the State Grange. All work of the bureau must be reported to the State Grange at its annual meeting. Last winter, in correspondence with E. B. Dorsett, overseer of the Pennsylvania State Grange exchange, it was suggested that the farmers of the West might profitably co-operate with the patrons of the East in selling to them directly, in carload lots, the grain, alfalfa, hay, grass seed etc., which the West produces and they use; and in buying from them directly, in carload lots, the products which they produce and the West uses—thus eliminating the middleman.

British Navy Needs Much Coal.
Ships in the British navy annually consume 3,000,000 long tons of coal and 900,000 long tons of oil fuel. The Scotch oil fields are receiving a good deal of attention.

Mending an Umbrella.
Take a small piece of black sticking paste and soak it until it is quite soft; place it carefully under the hole inside and let it dry. This is better than darning, as it closes the hole neatly and without stitching.

Hull Moose Leaders Plan to Force His Nomination.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, June 4.—Sentiment is steadily growing among Progressive leaders in New York state that Colonel Theodore Roosevelt should be nominated for governor and during his absence in Europe steps may be taken that will force him to head the state ticket. Today's conference of members of the state advisory board of the party with George W. Perkins is expected to have a marked effect on plans for the Progressives' fall campaign.

Upstate leaders are particularly active in pressing their demand that Colonel Roosevelt be a candidate. They are opposed to efforts being made in New York to get the Progressive endorsement for District Attorney Whitman, who has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination.

"Colonel Roosevelt can be shown that the demand for his candidacy is so great that he ought not to decline to run," said H. S. Wilkinson of Syracuse today. Mr. Wilkinson declared that he would fight any endorsement of Whitman.

Ex-senator Frederick M. Davenport, chairman of the Progressive legislative committee, said that Colonel Roosevelt had declared he did not want the gubernatorial nomination; this statement did not mean he would decline to run if he were needed to help the party.

"Events of the next few weeks will determine what will have to be done," said Mr. Davenport.

Other members of the advisory board include Chauncey Hamlin of Erie county, State Chairman Theodore Douglas Robinson, Bainbridge Colby and Francis W. Bird of New York county. Mr. Bird has already declared against any amalgamation of the Republicans and Progressives in this state.

The Yale Two-Speed Has Made Sidecars Practical

A Motorcycle without a practical, efficient two-speed gear could not be expected to handle a sidecar satisfactorily, for the added weight made the hard pulls of starting, driving over bad roads, climbing steep hills, etc., too much for the old style single-gear kind of motorcycle. But the

Two-Speed Yale Motorcycle

OPENED A WHOLE NEW FIELD OF USEFULNESS AND PLEASURE by providing ABILITY TO HANDLE A SIDECAR EFFECTIVELY. With a sidecar on the "Big Y" you can start quickly and easily from a standstill—STEP ON THE LOW-SPEED PEDAL, JUST AS IN AN AUTOMOBILE, and glide away. No matter how rough or crooked the road, or how steep the hills it ascends, the Two-Speed Yale with sidecar FORGES STEADILY and COMFORTABLY FORWARD, never hesitating or faltering.

You can't expect satisfaction with a sidecar unless you have the BEST TWO-SPEED. And you CAN'T FIND A TWO-SPEED EQUAL TO THE YALE. The natural thing for you to do is to get a Two-Speed Yale and sidecar, but—unless you get your order in quickly you may have to wait, for there are many names on the books ahead of you.

National Advertising

National advertising is only local advertising very much multiplied. Goods are not sold to the Nation—But to the people in the Nation. Each person is a unit and must be reached as such.

The greatest medium for reaching the people at the right moment is the daily newspaper.

Whatever other mediums advertisers may use—they must in the last analysis use the newspapers directly or indirectly.

Many wise National advertisers now use the daily newspapers in large volume, because through them they not only reach the people but also inspire confidence in the distributors of their goods.

National advertisers interested in ways of making their advertising more productive are invited to address the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, 806 World Building, New York.

The Yale Two-Speed Has Made Sidecars Practical

A Motorcycle without a practical, efficient two-speed gear could not be expected to handle a sidecar satisfactorily, for the added weight made the hard pulls of starting, driving over bad roads, climbing steep hills, etc., too much for the old style single-gear kind of motorcycle. But the

Two-Speed Yale Motorcycle

OPENED A WIDE NEW FIELD OF USEFULNESS AND PLEASURE by providing ABILITY TO HANDLE A SIDECAR EFFECTIVELY. With a sidecar on the "Big Y" you can start quickly and easily from a standstill—STEP ON THE LOW-SPEED PEDAL, JUST AS IN AN AUTOMOBILE, and glide away. No matter how rough or crooked the road, or how steep the hills it ascends, the Two-Speed Yale with sidecar FORGES STEADILY and COMFORTABLY FORWARD, never hesitating or faltering.

You can't expect satisfaction with a sidecar unless you have the BEST TWO-SPEED. And you CAN'T FIND A TWO-SPEED EQUAL TO THE YALE. The natural thing for you to do is to get a Two-Speed Yale and sidecar, but—unless you get your order in quickly you may have to wait, for there are many names on the books ahead of you.

National Advertising

National advertising is only local advertising very much multiplied. Goods are not sold to the Nation—But to the people in the Nation. Each person is a unit and must be reached as such.

The greatest medium for reaching the people at the right moment is the daily newspaper.

Whatever other mediums advertisers may use—they must in the last analysis use the newspapers directly or indirectly.

Many wise National advertisers now use the daily newspapers in large volume, because through them they not only reach the people but also inspire confidence in the distributors of their goods.

National advertisers interested in ways of making their advertising more productive are invited to address the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, 806 World Building, New York.

TURNER GUILTY AND SENTENCED TO JAIL

Charley Turner was found guilty of the crime of carrying a concealed weapon in county court on Wednesday afternoon by the jury who took about half an hour to reach the verdict. Turner's sentence was deferred until today by Judge Jenkins. He was indicted by the grand jury some time ago and has spent about six months in the county jail awaiting trial. His case was taken up at the opening of court on Wednesday morning and was given to the jury about 3:30 that afternoon. Assistant District Attorney Frederick G. Traver prosecuted Turner, who was defended by Newton H. Fessenden.

An amazing feature of the trial was the fact that Turner, who is about 27 years old, was convicted on the evidence given against him by his sister, Bessie, his brother, Ira, his grandmother, Mrs. Esther Brown of Ravine street, and his aunt, Mrs. Hannah Rugar, of 22 West Union street, while his father, George Turner, testified in his behalf in an effort to free his son from prison. In fact, all of the evidence given at the trial, with the exception of the testimony of Policemen William Hess and William Reardon, was given by members of the accused immediately family.

According to the story as brought out at the trial, Charley, who in 1904 had served a term on Randall's Island for stealing brass fittings from the Ulster & Delaware railroad yards, and later served seven years as a marine stationed at Panama and the Brooklyn navy yard, about the first of this year came home to visit his people. He found that the family did not live together. His brother, Ira, and his sister, Bessie, who is a pretty girl of 19 years, were living with his grandmother, Mrs. Brown, on Ravine street, and Charley during his brief stay also stayed at his grandmother's home. His father, George Turner, was living "somewhere" on Hasbrouck avenue, according to Miss Bessie.

Tuesday, January 6, Charley met his father in Myers's saloon on Hasbrouck avenue, where they had a round of drinks and his brother, Ira, came in and stayed a short time. According to the story as told by Bessie, Ira, Mrs. Rugar and Mrs. Brown, Charley was carrying a revolver which he showed to them. In fact, after leaving the saloon, according to the story Charley and his dad went to Mrs. Brown's home where the father asked Bessie if it was true she was going to elope with Mason Van Wageningen of New York city, who was on his way to Kingston. She replied that it was not, and when the father left the room Charley came in and according to Bessie drew the revolver and threatened to shoot her.

Charley in his own behalf, swore that the revolver he was carrying was given him by Ira in Myers's saloon and that it was not loaded. That the pin that kept the cylinder attached to the barrel was missing and the gun could not be fired. This was Charley's defense that the gun was worthless and could not possibly be fired. When the revolver was recovered from the ash can where it was thrown by Mrs. Brown after the scene between Bessie and Charley the pin was missing and although Hess and Reardon searched for it it could not be found. Bullets that just fitted the revolver were found in Charley's pocket, however, but his explanation was that he carried them as souvenirs, although it was brought out that weapons of 32 caliber were not used by Charley while in the navy. It was also brought out that enough time had elapsed before the gun was thrown away by Mrs. Brown for Charley to have removed the missing pin.

Those on the jury were Helwick D. George, Henry Foster, Jeremiah Avery, William Price, George Rich, Webster Christiana, John Schneider, David H. Dawes, John R. Wagner, George Fowler, Atwood Croak, and George P. Day.

Turner was sentenced to serve two months in the county jail with the advice to leave the county as soon as his term expired this morning. In answer to the usual questions he said that he had no particular occupation but followed up mostly everything. He was 26 years of age and could read and write and was born in this city. He was not married and his parents were living. Charley said that he drank moderately and had been convicted once before on a charge of petit larceny. He had had an opportunity of religious instruction in the Episcopal Church.

His attorney, Newton H. Fessenden, before sentence was pronounced pleaded for clemency on the part of the court and called attention to the fact that Charley had already been held in jail for nearly six months awaiting trial and that as soon as he could leave the county was going to join the navy.

Assistant District Attorney Frederick G. Traver said that as far as the district attorney's office was concerned the navy was welcome to Charley.

Judge Jenkins in pronouncing sentence said that the crime Turner had been convicted of was a felony and it was within his power to send him to state prison for seven years. He warned Charley that gunpowder and alcohol made a bad combination. The court said that Charley did not want to have an idea that the court or the jury believed the story he had told in his own behalf but considering the fact that no one had been injured by the affair that he would sentence him to two months in the county jail and would advise him at the expiration of his sentence to leave the county and to be sure and leave the members of his family and particularly his sister Bessie alone in the future.

France Pleads Guilty.

Fowler, he withdrew his original plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty to the first indictment. The other two indictments were dismissed. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $25, which he did and was discharged. According to the statement made to the court by Mr. Fowler, France had filed an application for a license to sell insurance with the state department and instead of waiting for the license to be issued had gone ahead and sold insurance. The crime, however, was simply a technical one as he had since received his license and was now in a position to do legally what before had been a crime.

A Revolting Case.

The trial of Raphael Mussolino of Tongore on an indictment found by the grand jury charging him with keeping a disorderly house was taken up before Judge Jenkins and a

District Attorney Cunningham and Assistant District Attorney Traver prosecuted the case and Raphael was defended by William D. Brinner, Jr., of the firm of Brinner & Canfield. The case was continued this afternoon.

New Needlework Guild.

Few in this city know of the organization called The Needlework Guild of America and the great good it is doing in various cities and towns all over our land. It was first conceived and founded in 1876 by Mrs. Wolverton an English woman of the nobility, as an unique and practical way of providing clothing for her wards in an orphanage, where she was founder and foster mother. In 1885 a lady of Philadelphia visiting England learned of this charity, which had then grown to great strength, brought the idea home to Philadelphia, interested a few ladies, and from this little band, a great organization has grown, until now there is a national body, governing the branches of which there are over 300 in 35 states. Each branch controls its own work, which provides clothing for the poor, children's homes, orphanages, and hospitals which are in this way able to provide comfortable clothing for the outgoing poor patients. Each branch has a president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, with directors who solicit ten members to join her, each contributing two garments annually of wearing apparel or household linen. There will be a meeting to organize a branch in our city to be held at the residence of Mrs. Albert Carr, 149 Clinton avenue, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All ladies desiring to do a good work are invited to be present.

Gray-Ramsden.

Miss Edna Jane Ramsden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Robert Ramsden, of Fairview avenue, Jersey City, and Allen Francis Gray, Jr., of Kingston, N. Y., were married on June 1. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Cromwell Watson, 127 Jewett avenue, Jersey City, and was performed by the Rev. George Daniel Hadley, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, about seventy-five relatives and friends attending. Green and white were used in the decorations, palms and ferns being banked in the drawing room by the windows where the bridal party stood, the flowers were on the mantels and in bowls about the room. The bride walked with her father and was preceded in the bridal procession by the two brides.

Mabel Gray of Kingston, sister of the groom, and Steale of Union Hill walked together and one of pink and the other of white and blue. Each wore a long and lace-trimmed gown with a sash of chiffon pink roses. The white crepe of court train and bodice, and short and wide of tulle with wreath of orange white roses and lilies. The best man was Raymond Jersey City, who with the groom, met the bride, her father and attendants in the arch of palms where the ceremony took place. A stringed orchestra played appropriate selections during the ceremony. A wedding reception followed the ceremony and a bridal supper was served in the dining room which was decorated with pink and white flowers. The large number of beautiful gifts received by the bride were shown upstairs. After a wedding tour in the south Mr. and Mrs. Gray will reside at 153 Wegman Place, Jersey City.

Knew the Sex.

When a woman canvasser asked an old farmer to sign a petition in favor of a woman's movement, he eyed the document for a while with suspicion. "No, I'm agin' it, sure," was the reply, with the emphasis of a man who had had some domestic infelicity. "A woman who's allus a-movin' is allus a-gettin' in trouble. If you got anything to keep her quiet I'll sign it."

No Grammar School League.

A meeting was held on Wednesday evening attended by George D. Beckwith and A. H. Christian from the Y. M. C. A. and Superintendent M. J. Michael and the principals of the city grammar schools to arrange for a grammar school baseball league, but it was decided that owing to the closeness of the coming examinations that it would not be well to attempt to organize this summer, but to leave the matter open until next winter when the organization could be perfected in time for games to be played as soon as the weather permitted in the early spring.

TURNER GUILTY AND SENTENCED TO JAIL

In fact, all of the evidence given at the trial, with the exception of the testimony of Policemen William Hess and William Reardon, was given by members of the accused immediately family.

His father, George Turner, was living "somewhere" on Hasbrouck avenue, according to Miss Bessie.

Tuesday, January 6, Charley met his father in Myers' saloon on Hasbrouck avenue, where they had a round of drinks and his brother, Ira, came in and stayed a short time. According to the story as told by Bessie, Ira, Mrs. Rugar and Mrs. Brown, Charley was carrying a revolver which he showed to them. In fact, after leaving the saloon, according to the story Charley and his dad went to Mrs. Brown's home where the father asked Bessie if it was true he was going to elope with Mason Van Wagoner of New York city, who was on his way to Kingston. She replied that it was not, and when the father left the room, Charley came in and according to Bessie drew the revolver and threatened to shoot her.

Charley in his own behalf, swore that the revolver he was carrying was given him by Ira in Myers' saloon and that it was not loaded. That the pin that kept the cylinder attached to the barrel was missing and the gun could not be fired. This was Charley's defense that the gun was worthless and could not possibly be fired. When the revolver was recovered from the ash can where it was thrown by Mrs. Brown after the scene between Bessie and Charley the pin was missing and although Hess and Reardon searched for it it could not be found. Bullets that just fitted the revolver were found in Charley's pocket, however, but his explanation was that he carried them as souvenirs, although it was brought out that weapons of 32 caliber were not used by Charley while in the navy. It was also brought out that enough time had elapsed before the gun was thrown away by Mrs. Brown for Charley to have removed the missing pin.

Those on the jury were Helwick D. George, Henry Foster, Jeremiah Avery, William Price, George Rich, Webster Christiana, John Schneider, David H. Dawes, John R. Wagner, George Fowler, Atwood Croak, and George P. Day.

Turner was sentenced to serve two months in the county jail with the advice to leave the county as soon as his term expired by Judge Jenkins in county court this morning. In answer to the usual question of occupation but followed up mostly everything. He was 25 years of age and could read and write and was born in this city. He was not married and his parents were living. Charley said that he drank moderately and had been convicted once before on a charge of petit larceny. He had had an opportunity of religious instruction in the Episcopal Church.

His attorney, Newton H. Fessenden, before sentence was pronounced pleaded for clemency on the part of the court and called attention to the fact that Charley had already been held in jail for nearly six months awaiting trial and that as soon as he could leave the county was going to join the navy.

Assistant District Attorney Frederick G. Traver said that as far as the district attorney's office was concerned the navy was welcome to Charley.

Judge Jenkins in pronouncing sentence said that the crime Turner had been convicted of was a felony and it was within his power to send him to state prison for seven years. He warned Charley that gunpowder and alcohol made a bad combination. The court said that Charley did not want to have an idea that the court or the jury believed the story he had told in his own behalf but considering the fact that no one had been injured by the affair that he would sentence him to two months in the county jail and would advise him at the expiration of his sentence to leave the county and to be sure and leave the members of his family and particularly his sister Bessie alone in the future.

Hearings were had before the Hon. Marcus T. Hun of Albany, the referee, in the action brought by James D. Lecky against Winston and Company to recover half a million of dollars on Tuesday and Wednesday. All of Tuesday was consumed in Judge Clearwater's cross examination of Lecky. On Wednesday Willis G. Nash, vice president of the Chatham National Bank of New York city; Henry M. Imhoff, vice president of the Mercantile National Bank of New York city, and Ledyard Cogswell, president of the State of New York National Bank of Albany, were examined. Much of the evidence introduced was documentary, consisting of cheques, notes, bills of exchange, drafts, letters and transcripts of books. Judge Clearwater represented the Winstons.

Fowler, he withdrew his original plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty to the first indictment. The other two indictments were dismissed. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $25, which he did and was discharged. According to the statement made to the court by Mr. Fowler, France had filed an application for a license to sell insurance with the state department and instead of waiting for the license to be issued had gone ahead and sold insurance. The crime, however, was simply a technical one as he had since received his license and was now in a position to do legally what before had been a crime.

A Revolting Case.

The trial of Raphael Mussolino of Tongore on an indictment found by the grand jury charging him with keeping a disorderly house was taken up before Judge Jenkins and a

District Attorney Cunningham and Assistant District Attorney Traver prosecuted the case and Raphael was defended by William D. Brinler, Jr., of the firm of Brinler & Canfield. The case was continued this afternoon.

New Needlework Guild.

Few in this city know of the organization called The Needlework Guild of America and the great good it is doing in various cities and towns all over our land. It was first conceived and founded in 1876 by Mrs. Wolverton an English woman of the nobility, as an unique and practical way of providing clothing for her wards in an orphanage, the windows where the bridal party where she was founder and foster mother. In 1885 a lady of Philadelphia visiting England learned of this charity, which had then grown to great strength, brought the idea home to Philadelphia. Interested a few ladies, and from this little band, a great organization has grown, until now there is a national body, governing the branches of which there are over 300 in 35 states. Each branch controls its own work, which provides clothing for the poor, children's homes, orphanages, and hospitals which are in this way able to provide comfortable clothing for the outgoing poor patients. Each branch has a president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, with directors who solicit ten members to join her, each contributing two garments annually of wearing apparel or household linen. There will be meeting to organize a branch in our city to be held at the residence of Mrs. Albert Carr, 149 Clinton avenue, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All ladies desiring to do a good work are invited to be present.

Gray-Ramsden.

Miss Edna Jane Ramsden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Robert Ramsden, of Fairview avenue, Jersey City, and Allen Francis Gray, Jr., of Kingston, N. Y., were married on June 1. George Daniel Hadley, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, about seventy-five relatives and friends attending. Green and white were used in the decorations, palms and ferns being banked in the drawing room by the windows where the bridal party stood, the flowers were on the mantel. In 1885 a lady of Philadelphia visiting England learned of this charity, which had then grown and was preceded in the bridal procession by the two bride Mabel Gray of Kingston, daughter of the groom, and Steale of Union Hill, walked together as one of pink and the brocade charmeuse length and lace tricorn hats with sashes of chiffon pink roses. The white crepe of court train adorned with lace bodice, and and short of tulle with wreath of orange white roses and lilies. The best man was Raymond Jersey City, who with the groom, met the bride, her father and attendants in the arch of palms where the ceremony took place. A stringed orchestra played appropriate selections during the ceremony. A wedding reception followed the ceremony and a bridal supper was served in the dining room which was decorated with pink and white flowers. The large number of beautiful gifts received by the bride were shown upstairs. After a wedding tour in the south Mr. and Mrs. Gray will reside at 153 Wegman Place, Jersey City.

Knew the Sex.

When a woman canvasser asked an old farmer to sign a petition in favor of a woman's movement, he eyed the document for a while with suspicion. "No, I'm agin' it, sure," was the reply, with the emphasis of a man who had had some domestic infelicity. "A woman who's allus a-movin' is allus a-gettin' in trouble. If you got anything to keep her quiet I'll sign it."

No Grammar School League.

A meeting was held on Wednesday evening attended by George D. Beckwith and A. H. Christian from the Y. M. C. A. and Superintendent M. J. Michael and the principals of the city grammar schools to arrange for a grammar school baseball league, but it was decided that owing to the closeness of the coming examinations that it would not be well to attempt to organize this summer, but to leave the matter open until next winter when the organization could be perfected in time for games to be played as soon as the weather permitted in the early spring.

3 o'clock he saw Herbert crawling from a window and started an in-

Inside a bedroom the odor of gaso-

STOLEN HORSE FOUND.

Abandoned by the Thief Who Escaped a Bicycle.

The horse that was stolen from

Conklin's livery at N. w. Paltz on Monday by Edward Tompkins was found standing under Beyersdorfer's shed at Whiteport by Deputy Sheriff

Jacob Huben on Wednesday evening

where it had been left by Tompkins, who, when last heard of, had gone to his brother's home at Clintondale and helped himself to a bicycle and made for the outer confines of the county.

Word of the robbery had been sent out throughout the county, as told in Wednesday's Freeman. Young Tompkins had secured the outfit by going to Conklin's livery and hiring the horse and wagon for the day. He sold the wagon but for some reason

shed at Whiteport, where it was later found. His record is said to be not of the best.

served decision Wednesday in the tained evidence against his wife in the stand, refused to testify after

Judge Mills had informed him that his evidence might be used to prose-
